Big Crowd At Field Meet

The Third Annual Field Meet held at the grounds of Champion Corn School on Sat. Oct. 1st was the most successful yet so far as competition was concerned. The attendance of spectators was not quite as large as formerly but competition in each event was keener than ever. New records in nearly every event were set and another outstanding feature of the meet was the showing made by the rural schools.

The following is a list of the special award winners in each class:

CLASS A
Boys--Reggie Alcock 8 points.
Freddie Fleming 8 points. Girls--
Linda Camulise 7 points.

CLASS B
Boys--Howard Hagg 9 (Fireguard).
Girls--Evelyn Sletto 12 (Fireguard).
Rita Camulise 12.

CLASS C
Boys--Walter Anderson 13. Girls--
Margaret Path 10.

CLASS D
Boys--Harold Bach 8 (Bow Valley).
Girls--Bertha Fleming 14.

CLASS E
Boys--Vernon Wellman 14 (Yale).
Girls--Barbara Bastin 11.

CLASS F
Boys--Don Campbell 17. Girls--
Barbara Bastin 12.

The special prize to the boy and girl winning the greatest number of points in classes A, B, and C go to Walter Anderson and Evelyn Sletto and Rita Camulise (tied). The individual cups in classes D, E, and F go to Don Campbell and Barbara Bastin and Bertha Fleming (tied with 23 points each).

The standings of the schools in number of points obtained by each is as follows:

Miss Cook's room, Champion, 81 points.

Mr. Baker's room, Champion, 60 points.

Miss McNaughton (Fireguard) 56 points.

Miss Cameron's room, Champion, 52 points.

Miss McNaughton (Yale) 36 points.

Miss Clarkson's room, Champion, 32 points.

Mr. Farrier's room, Champion, 30 points.

Miss Kay (Blissom) 17 points.

Mr. Whitmarsh (Bow Valley) 14 points.

Miss Jorgens (Hawthorn) 10 points.

Miss Fleming (Sanderson) 2 points.

Mr. Newlin (Washington) 0 points.

Miss Rootstock (Long Coulee) 0 points.

Miss Cook's room won the large cup. The winners in each event are as follows:

CLASS A
Boy's 25 yd. dash--1 Reggie Alcock.
1 Freddie Fleming, 3 Buddy Weiss.

Girl's 25 yd. dash--1 Linda Camulise.
1 Lillian Orcutt, 3 Marie Duto.

How to Get Your Poultry Ready for Market

We issued a circular letter about a month ago advising we thought it would be a good thing for the farmers of Western Canada to fatten, kill and market dressed poultry this fall. Instead of shipping them live weight, and we promised you a second circular dealing with the fattening of poultry. In the past a good many farmers did not pay much attention to the feeding of their poultry, particularly their spring chickens during the growing period, the result was when they came to market them in the fall, they were long, runny and not very fat.

Poultry handlers like ourselves put these chickens in the feeding station for a period of two weeks and tried to finish them but the results were not always satisfactory because of the poor condition of the birds when we received them.

Indications now are that there will be a lot of chicken and fowl to market this fall, consequently we would advise farmers to cull out their flocks and market only their best birds. The price you will get for thin or poorly conditioned poultry will be so small that it will all be profit for you to go to the expense of getting them ready for the outside market.

We will begin quoting prices on dressed chickens and fowl about Nov. 1st, and continue until the end of the year. Therefore, we would advise farmers to commence putting their chickens and fowl in the fattening pens about Oct. 15th, and in the meantime give your poultry, especially young chickens, liberal rations of grain.

To obtain best results in feeding poultry the grain should be ground. A mixture of oat and barley chop or oat and wheat chop makes a good ration. This chop should be mixed with skim milk or buttermilk. If available but water can be used. Whole grain can also be used but will not produce the same results as good chop. Birds should be fed what they will clean up at one time instead of leaving feed before them at all times. Feaving of water should be so arranged that chickens that are being fed in either crates or pens.

To get the best results from the above mixture would recommend pen fattening chickens from twenty to thirty days and fowl from twelve to fifteen days.

Yours very truly,
PALM DAIRIES LIMITED.

Grain Market Features

(Extract from report supplied by the Research Dept. of the SEABL GRAIN COMPANY LIMITED WINNIPEG.)

The Close of the First Russian "Five Year Plan"

"Foreign Crops and Markets," the publication of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture, in their last issue, publish a very complete and elaborate survey of the Russian first "Five Year Plan." A survey was conducted by two social investigators of the U. S. A. Foreign Agricultural Service. The gist of the survey shows that market increases in the average of all crops and particularly the important ones of wheat and cotton have been recorded since the beginning of the plan, and that cotton production has advanced so far as to greatly reduce the need for imports. Great strides far exceeding expectations have been made in the development of state and collective farms. It is beginning to be noted, however, that progress is definitely slowing up and that there is developing a shortage of skilled managers and technical personnel, and particularly a lack of incentive on the part of the peasants, which is seriously hindering the prompt and timely execution of tillage, sowing and harvesting operations. The sale of grain by peasants on the open market is now permitted and a great difference in price has been developed between the open market price and that paid by the government collecting agencies. A serious shortage of livestock and particularly draft animals has developed, and as well a difficulty in the maintaining in repair of mechanical implements. One-third of all the tractors, for instance, are reported unusable. The production of grain is very much below the plan. The so-called "procuring" operations of the U. S. S. R. to balance the collection on purchases of surplus agricultural products by Soviet agencies at fixed prices. Crops thus procured are used for feeding the city population, the army, for the accumulation of reserves and for export.

Will Wheat Prices Rise?

The world's monstrous surplus of wheat has increased from 150 million bushels in 1922 to 460 million bushels in 1932. As this excess production diminishes the price will tend to rise. Should the world again have confidence in credit money, not fully supported by gold, and can use that credit profitably, then the quantity of money would increase and prices consequently rise. Even though this latter should not take place, the value of wheat will steadily increase. The farmer is much more concerned with the value of wheat than with its price. Wheat can have a high value at a low price, because value means the quantity of goods and commodities for which the bushel of wheat exchanges. Today the value of wheat is lower even than its price. Fluctuating 1932 prices at 10c, wheat today is 15c, but the things the farmer has to buy average 12c. Wages of employed persons who make the farmer's goods are at 182 cents are about 120 and taxes more than 200,—so prices are out of line, which is the main trouble, but they are daily drawing together, when they all meet as they did in 1914, and eventually they must meet, property will be with us regardless of the price level. The farmer's condition is getting better because the things he has to buy are daily becoming cheaper. Over a term of years it is certain that the average producer will receive at least the cost of his production.

There is a total of 5,872 grain elevators with a capacity of 414,900,000 bushels in the western and eastern divisions in Canada. Of this total, 5,784 are country elevators with a capacity of 292,951,100 bushels. Manitoba has 720 elevators with a capacity of 22,751,500 bushels. Saskatchewan has 3,257 elevators with a capacity of 103,856,400 bushels. Alberta has 1,746 elevators with a capacity of 75,341,200 bushels.

Items of General and Particular Information

Growers desiring to place their wheat in the 1932-33 pool must declare their intent in at the time the grain is delivered.

By the end of October the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool will have shipped four million bushels of grain for export via Churchill, Canada's only port.

Both Saskatchewan and Manitoba Pool elevator systems report much better receipts this year than last and the Alberta Pool elevators have the same experience.

A coincidence in shipping grain is reported by the Alberta Pool Elevators of the Canadian Pacific Railway with regard to the number 15501. It appears that this car was reserved to W. H. Snell, of Barons, Alberta, twice during the current season. The percentage against this securing runs into stupendous figures. In both cases Mr. Snell delivered grain on a pooling basis.

Russian wheat exports from August 1st last week and totaled 4,384,000 bushels as against 38,348,000 bushels for the same period a year ago.

North America shipped nearly eight million bushels of wheat last week, most of this volume coming from Canada. Austria shipped 2.12 million bushels, largely to non-European countries and Argentina shipped 1.14 million bushels.

Youthful Strength

Dr. Magnus Hirschfeld, the world known authority on Sexology and Director of the Institute for Sexual Science of Berlin, Germany created to help the millions of men and women who have lost or are losing their vital physical power. In his 35 years of practice and research, however, he realized that the weak aging of man's glands was also responsible for other troubles: High blood pressure, hardening of the arteries, physical exhaustion after work or exercise, dizziness, depression, neurasthenia, etc.

All these troubles can be removed with Titus-Pearls. Numerous cases were treated by Dr. Hirschfeld in his Berlin Institute. L. S. (State Official): 60 years old, married, complained of physical exhaustion, dizziness and tremors. Was easily tired. Mental powers dull and slow moving. Physical powers had been incomplete for previous 5 years. Blood pressure too high. Given 2 Titus-Pearls 3 times a day, 2 weeks later the medical report on this man was: General health better, more vigor; dizziness much less and returning of power. Treatment continued and 2 weeks later L. S. reported again, this time to say that all weakness and exhaustion had gone; he felt fresh and innocent. His blood pressure had fallen, and at 60 years of age he had regained the physical power and vitality that he had known in the prime of his life. Start regarding your youthfulness now! To-day! In 2 weeks time you will be aware of the new, virile force within you. Send $3.00 (cash registered or money order) for 2 weeks treatment. Write for booklet, C. O. D. orders accepted.

"Fresh from the Gardens"

The Sun Is Shining.

As the writer sits down before his typewriter to type out this article, bright sunshine, typical of these beautiful Indian summer days on the prairies, is streaming through the window, while there is that invigorating tang in the air which leads one to throw back his head and draw in a lungful. The sun is shining, and in these days when we are all too prone to dwell on the dark side of things, it is well to remember that the sun is still there, shining away as strong as ever, the only difficulty being the clouds that intervene to obscure its vision.

The sun still shines, not only in the actual meaning of the words in the physical world, but in the sense that there is much of brightness and warmth in life itself. Admittedly there are still difficulties ahead for many people, there are very acute problems to be solved, not only by individuals, but by communities and governments. Those difficulties must be overcome, and solutions for these problems found, but there is not a very large ray of sunshine indeed in the knowledge that never before in the history of mankind were so many people, including the poorest brains in all countries, devoting their time, their intellect, their energies, to searching out and testing the efficiency of the remedies to be applied. The world knows there is something out of joint somewhere and there is a sure confidence and satisfaction in the knowledge that such a great number of people are working to find out something will turn up to bring about a betterment, but, on the contrary, are tackling the problem from all angles with a view to effecting that betterment and to preventing a recurrence of present difficulties.

Some people, who talk as if they believed the sun had been finally and forever blotted out, keep on circulating pessimistic views of the effect that the moral character of people is breaking down, that they are losing their initiative, that, instead of retaining confidence in themselves and a pride in their own achievements, they are willing to become the mere hangers-on of the state. In the prevailing atmosphere of gloom in which such people surround themselves, they see growing up a generation of loafers and criminals. Is this a true picture? If it is, how can one account for such a highly desirable state of things, as reported in the Toronto Globe, that during the recent Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto nearly a million and a half people passed through its gates, and in all that time not one arrest on a major charge was made. As the Globe says this is a remarkable record.

The Globe says further that there were but two fires and those of no great consequence; further evidence of the commonsense care exercised by dwellers in what for the time being was a great city exposed to the dangers besetting all densely populated urban areas. There is no incidence in those reports that Canadian people are losing their normal grip, inclined to disregard the law and to engage in reckless, irresponsible acts.

The sun is shining. The spirit of helpfulness which rose to great heights during the tragic years of the war still lives in the hearts and minds of our people. It was displayed last year when people in the older sections of Canada shipped truckloads of supplies to assist and comfort their fellow-citizens in the drought-afflicted areas of Saskatchewan. It is being displayed this year within the confines of that province by a great rallying-together of people who "have" in order that they may give to those who again this year unfortunately, "have not." It reminds one of the war days when Red Cross branches, Patriotic Fund committees, and other organizations with like objects were organized and active in every section of the country, and in districts, to now read of the organization of voluntary rural relief committees in areas where there are crops, albeit not very profitable,—to assist the people in the smaller areas where, again this year, there have been no crops.

The sun is shining in the hearts of those who are building up and supporting these voluntary relief committees, and the sun will be shining in the homes to which such aid is extended.

And the clouds are growing thinner and lifting. Every now and then a ray of sun flickers through because it has never ceased shining. The clouds will finally break and disappear, and the sun burst forth in all its splendor and life-giving warmth. Despite all our discouragements, let us keep our courage, just as we are, as a people, clinging steadfastly to our old-time concepts of honesty, morality, industry and respect for the laws and institutions of our country.

French Talking To Tea

Custons Reports Show Imports Doubled In Two Years

People of France, long noted for their wines, are taking to the sun to return home in the last two years imports of tea have doubled. Moreover, the leaves for the beverage, which formerly came through England, now are shipped direct from India and Ceylon to Marcellus, Havre and Bordeaux. Experts say the change is the result of the importation of better tea, and the teaching of how to get best results in using the hard Paris water in tea making.

Always At Work

We do not get rid of accidents by protesting; they only come to happen. Let us remember that those lives of Nature by which we sometimes suffer, are always at work, and for our advantage. The ocean waves carry a thousand ships at the very time they engulf one.

The case is reported of a small boy who says his prayers in his sleep. We are reminded of the man who said Grace in his sleep, his wife's name being Amelia.

All Her Children Were Troubled With Diarrhoea

M. J. J. Dickert, R. L. Enderly, R.C., writes: "Last Summer all my children were troubled with diarrhoea, and were so bad I did not know what to do. A friend told me to give them Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, on a few bottles, and after a course of dose you should have seen the change. The children were soon well again, and I am very thankful to your wonderful remedy. I find it the only one that relieves so easily and quickly."

Australian Pleased With Radio System

It Is Nationally Owned and Working Well Says Bruce

Australia's nationally-owned radio system, now controlled by a commission of five, is working well, Rt. Hon. Stanley Bruce stated at Ottawa after the Imperial Conference. The leader of the Australian delegation expressed interest in the national broadcasting commission to be appointed to supervise Canadian radio.

Mr. Bruce stressed importance of selecting qualified commissioners and said the entire Australian supervisory body had been chosen because of cultural background, business efficiency and general sympathy with important public movements. "Be sure you do not let politics play a part in the selection," he advised.

"I do not lack anxiety of the Australian commission members were ever mixed up in politics," Mr. Bruce said. Great interest and considerable satisfaction had been expressed with regard to the Australian commission, which acts in an advisory capacity and as a court of final appeal, but does not do any administrative work. Commissioners are part-time workers and receive a remuneration of £400 each annually, with £500 for the chairman.

Law Bans Shooting Ducks At Churchills

Port Still Under Construction and No Firearms Allowed

While sportsmen in northern Manitoba banged away at the mallards and teal as they flew south, the hunters of Churchill had to sit idly by and watch the birds enjoy the peace and quietude of the closed season. Churchill is still "under construction" and the law says that no firearms are allowed in the camp.

There were hundreds of ducks right in camp. They were on the grain that the army says has been planted in choice morsels of vegetation in the sloughs around the camp. They were quite tame, having been fed for weeks by the workmen.

Trappers who arrived from along the west coast stated that ducks and geese flew from the sloughs in thousands a few miles east.

The ducks in this district are chiefly pintails and mallards, with a few teal. To the north and east and west there are large numbers of Pintailers. They are protected the year round so the Eskimos will not run short of food.

Prefers North Country

Woman Very Eager To Get Back To Alaska

It's nothing to drive forty miles to a dance in the north country, according to Mrs. Elizabeth Marsh of Iditarod, Alaska, who has been visiting her children at Vancouver.

"The dances are the big social event up north," said Mrs. Marsh. "I never missed out of them since going down twenty years ago."

Mrs. Marsh says she never thinks of the cold in the Arctic country. Winter is coming on now, but she says she is to be back in the land where the ground is covered with ice and snow most of the year.

After several years at Wrangell, Mrs. Marsh went to Fairbanks by train and then 500 miles by dog sled and afoot over the lofty Rainy Pass to McGrath at the head of navigation on the mighty Kuskokwim River. For thirteen years she has been living at or near McGrath. She looks after the men's laundry and keeps a store.

Had Dual Personality

Amazing Story About British Officer Has Been Revealed

As the world war was being waged, he was stripped of his rank, degraded before the men he had commanded and sentenced by court-martial to be shot for cowardice.

As a private in the French army, going through the worst fighting round Verdun, he was promoted on the field for courage and decorated afterwards by Marshal Foch, who described him as "the bravest man I have ever known."

That is the amazing story of a dual personality which has been revealed for the first time by French government department.

This coward-here, an Englishman, was born in 1890 when he was broke out. He was working in France, and hurried home to join an English regiment.

Shortly after his arrival on the French front he was promoted to the rank of lieutenant. He was in a duel consisting of his being charged and convicted of cowardice. On the night fixed for the execution the man, who was known as Potter, managed to escape, and was hidden for some while by a French woman.

The hue and cry for him eventually led to his capture. He was sentenced to be hanged, but apparently driven by remorse, he joined the foreign legion, claiming to be an Alsatian. He gave his name as "Henry Mayer." Because he spoke perfect French he was able to get away with it.

"Mayer" won the rank of captain, was wounded seven times, and has been mentioned numerous times for conspicuous bravery.

Recently his real identity was discovered by the French police, but it is hoped that he will be shown mercy by his own government in view of the extraordinary circumstances.

The discovery of a new process of extracting valuable minerals from worthless rock without the labor and expense of first pulverizing the entire rock has been announced. The minerals are separated from the worthless rock by steam explosive shattering.

An Oil Without Alcohol

Some old and many medicines have alcohol as a prominent ingredient. A judicious mingling of six essential oils compose Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, and there is no alcohol in it, so that its effects are lasting.

Wood Regains World's Speedboat Record

American Pilot Averaged over 124 Miles An Hour

Gar Wood regained the world's speedboat record by sending his "Miss America 32," outspitting her 32 over a measured mile on the St. Clair River at Algonac, Mich., at an average speed of 124.01 statute miles an hour. The former record, 115.52 miles an hour, was made on Loch Lomond, Scotland, July 18 last, by Kaye Don, British speedboat pilot, who tried unsuccessfully to wrest the Harmsworth trophy from Wood.

Wood, after the record-breaking run, said "Miss America's" four 12-cylinder engines had not been well oiled in the effort and he thought the big, mahogany-hulled thunderbolt could go faster. "How much faster," he said. "The motors were making 2,700 revolutions per minute. Their limit, with safety, is 2,700 revolutions per minute."

Did Not Help Warning

Eight Calgary Residents Partially Blind in Recent Eclipse

Eight Calgary citizens have received medical attention for varying degrees of blindness as result of watching the eclipse of the sun on Monday, August 31, without the aid of darkened glasses, it was shown in inquiries made to eye specialists.

One woman is almost totally blind in one eye while her other eye is slightly affected. Others suffered severe strain and were partially blind. Whether the affected persons will completely recover will not be known until treatment is further advanced. Practically all were receiving attention for three or four months.

Found Their Own Market

Price Offered Did Not Suit Onion Growers Of Brittany

When growers of onions in the vicinity of Roscoff, Brittany, could not get the price offered for their crop of small farms last season, they formed a syndicate, chartered a small sailing vessel, loaded in 60 tons of onions, and sailed for Scotland. Carrying long strings of the onions on their backs they went from door to door in Glasgow and other cities peddling their wares.

When the cargo had been sold the powers figured up and found that the net profit was much larger than had they sold the vegetables at home.

Exhausted From Asthma. Many who read these words know the terrible drain upon health of asthma, which comes in the train of asthmatic attacks. Many can realize, however, that there is one true remedy which will usually stop this drain. Dr. J. K. Kelley's Asthma Remedy is a wonderful check to this ever-raging ailment. Many have found relief to its credit. It is sold almost everywhere.

Leads In Highway Mileage

Saskatchewan Heads All Provinces With 152,000 Miles

Saskatchewan leads all the provinces of the Dominion in highway mileage, with 152,000 miles open for traffic. It is followed by Alberta, which reported a lead by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Alberta came next with 62,420 miles, and Ontario with 52,119 was in third position. Other provinces, with their mileages, were: Quebec, 35,763; British Columbia, 22,499; Nova Scotia, 14,719; New Brunswick, 11,825; Manitoba, 5,320; and Prince Edward Island, 3,650 miles. The total highway mileage in Canada is 378,094.

Eskimos in Canada

Bureau Of Statistics Report Gives Number As 5,978

There are 5,978 Eskimos in Canada according to the census of 1921, and they are located as follows: Yukon, 85; Northwest Territories, 4,670; Quebec, 1,139; Manitoba, 62; Alberta, 1,000. There are 3,116 males and 2,863 females, says a report of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

It is impossible to say definitely whether the Eskimo population is increased or decreased during the past decade, but the impression is they are increasing.

RUSSIAN CANNOT SEND

Attempts To Follow Through Discontinued By Soviets

Henceforth bread, flour, cereals, seed oils and other foodstuffs are to be hoarded from the mails, the post office announced.

It is hoped in this way to stop the voluntary and individual attempts to relieve famine which prevails in many provincial districts.

In the past half-year and more the shortage of food has become so serious throughout large areas of the Soviet Union that desperate methods of obtaining bread have been resorted to Moscow and, to a lesser degree, other large cities have been jammed with peasants selling their last odds and ends of valuables for bread. The stations swarmed with peasants staggering under a heavy sack full of bread, back to the provinces and the farms.

Much food has also found its way through the mails. Friends and relatives in the capital have endeavored to relieve the suffering of their dear ones by occasional shipments of food. Food has not been plentiful in Moscow, but agile dodging about and discreet speculation has enabled many to accumulate a few leave extra or a few pounds of meat of some sort.

Now this channel has been plugged. Peasants will henceforth either have to attempt to get about already hopelessly overcrowded trains for a personal visit to Moscow—or starve.

Sleep is the great nourisher of infants, and without peaceful sleep the child will not thrive. This cannot be got if the infant be troubled with worms. Miller's Worm Powders will destroy worms and drive them from the system, and afterwards the child's sleep will be undisturbed. The powders cannot injure the most delicate baby, and there is nothing so effective for restoring the health of a worm-worm infant.

What is believed to be the most remarkable forest in the world has been found on the west coast of Africa. Although the trunks of the trees are as much as four feet in diameter, they attain the height of only one foot. No tree bears more than two leaves, which attain a length of six feet and breadth of two feet. The forest covers a tableland, six miles in width.

She found Blaise's cold, measured, elderly-brotherly kindness unendurable, and she exhausted herself beating continually against the rock of his determination, without producing any effect other than to make his manner even more austere, less friendly than it had been before.

Then when she recognized her total inability to move him to any sort of responsive emotion, and that her beauty—which was undeniable—made no more impression upon him than if he had been blind, she resorted to the old, painfully familiar weapons of tears and fits of temper, in the course of which she would upbraid him bitterly, pouring forth streams of reproaches which more often than not culminated in an attack of hysterics.

All of which Blaise bore with a curious, stolid self-control. It seemed as though the Tormarin temper had been exorcised, as if that fierce storm of anger provoked by Madame de Varigny's taunts, and which had so nearly resulted in a tragedy, had shocked Blaise into realization of the terrible latent possibilities of the family failing and the absolute necessity for an iron self-government.

For weeks he supported Nesta's petty gibes and ebullitions of temper with limbo-like patience, and it was only when, trading on his unaccustomed forbearance, she ventured too far, that she was brought very suddenly to understand that there was a limit beyond which she might not go.

"I know why you no longer love me," she told him at last, on an occasion when she had been vainly endeavouring, by every feminine blandishment and wile of which she was mistress, to evoke from him some sign of an awakening "tendresse."

"I know!"

She nodded her dark head significantly, while pin-points of jealous anger flickered in her long, narrow eyes, black as midnight.

"Then, if you know," replied Tormarin patiently, "it is surely most foolish of you to keep asking why I do not. Why can't you content yourself with things as they are, Nesta? We can only try to make the best of a bad job. You don't help me much in the matter."

"I don't want to help you," she retorted viciously. "I want you to love me. And you won't because of that washed-out-looking, carry-all-his-burden woman who is living with Lady Laddie. And she's in love with you, too!"

"No! I won't be quiet! Oh!"—her voice rising hysterically—"You think I don't notice things, but I do! I do, I tell you!"

She sprang from the couch, where she had been lying idly, and crossed the room to his side.

"Do you hear me?" she cried violently, shaking him by the arm. "You think I'm a blind fool! But I'm not! I'm not! I've seen that Peterson woman look at you like a cat looking through the ladder window!"

Suddenly she felt Blaise's hand clapped against her lips, stemming the torrent of vulgar recrimination and abuse that poured from them. He held it there quite gently, so as not to hurt her, but immovably, and she had no time to hear what he wished to say in rebellious silence.

"Listen to me," he said quietly. "It is quite true what you say—that I love Jean Peterson, and that she loves me. But we have given up our love, and with it our hope of happiness in this world, for you. In return, you will give up something for us. You will give up the infinite pleasure you appear to derive from enjoying and belittling a woman who is as much above you, as the heavens are above the earth, whose conception of love is as fine and pure as yours is mean and commonplace and jealous. You will never again speak of Miss Peterson, with anything but respect, and you will ever again refer to the love which you now know for a fact exists between us. Your lips still show love as ours. If you do, if you disobey my commands in either of these respects, you go out of my house that same day. And you don't return."

She released her and had the satisfaction, for once, of perceiving that she believed he meant what he said. Presumably she came to the conclusion that, in the circumstances, discretion was the better part of valour, for she made no attempt to challenge his determination in the matter.

At the same time, unknown to him, she compelled Jean to pay for the silence enforced upon her at home. With a species of venom, absurdly childish in its manifestation, she said to excite Jean's envy by constantly enlarging to her upon the subject of Blaise's perfections as a husband, drawing entirely imaginary descriptions of the attention he paid her and of his constant solicitude for her welfare, and vaunting her happiness at being his wife.

"I am so proud to have won so fine and splendid a husband," she would declare fervently. "Would you not feel the same, Miss Peterson, if you were me?"

And Jean would make answer, outwardly unmoved:

"Indeed I should. You ought to be a very happy woman, Mrs. Tormarin." The quiet composure which Jean invariably adopted in these gaudy little attacks annoyed Nesta intensely.

The quiet composure which Jean invariably adopted in these gaudy little attacks annoyed Nesta intensely. The quiet composure which Jean invariably adopted in these gaudy little attacks annoyed Nesta intensely. The quiet composure which Jean invariably adopted in these gaudy little attacks annoyed Nesta intensely.

Nesta felt that, as the woman in possession, she was missing half the satisfaction which she might have had in being able to triumph openly over the other woman—the woman without the ga's. Finally, at the end of her resources of innuendo and allusion, she tried the effect of open warfare.

She had driven over to Charwood to call and, as Claire was away, spending the afternoon with friends, Jean had had to entertain her undesired visitor alone. It was just as she was preparing to take her departure that Nesta launched her attack.

"You look so ill, Miss Peterson," she remarked complacently. "So pale and worn! It does not suit you, I assure you, for of course you must have been very pretty at one time for my husband to have wished to marry you."

Jean stared at her without reply. The outrageous speech almost took her breath away for its sheer, impudent bravado.

"There!" she sneered dimly. "Now I have offended you! And I want to go to good friends! But of course"—quickly—"it is difficult for you to feel friendly towards the wife of Blaise. I can understand that, I suppose"—her head a little tilted to one side like that of an enquiring robin and her eyes fastened on the other's white face with a merciless, gimlet gaze that filled Jean with helpless rage—"I suppose you loved him very much?"

Jean felt the blood rush into her cheeks and caught a responsive gleam of satisfaction in the other's half-closed eyes.

"I think that is hardly a subject which can be discussed between us," she said, with a supreme effort at self-control.

And then her unbowed stubbornness, Tucker threw open the door and announced that Mrs. Tormarin's car was waiting.

This open declaration of hostility on Nesta's part gave Jean food for reflection. Briefly she recounted the incident to Claire, adding:

"It means I must not go to Staple again. If she intends to adopt that attitude, it would make a situation which is already quite difficult enough hopelessly impossible."

The two girls were pacing up and down the terrace at Charwood together when Jean indicated the consequences of Nesta's visit, and Claire, sensing the pain in her friend's voice, pressed her arm sympathetically. But she said nothing. What was there to say? Within herself, she felt that Jean's determination to seclude the "Poor Blaise!" pursued Jean, a slight tremor in her voice. "He has the hardest part to bear. She must make life hideously difficult for him."

Claire nodded.

"Yes! He is looking fagged and strained. Horrid little beast!" she added with unusual vehemence. "Why on earth couldn't she have stayed dead?"

Jean laughed joyously.

"Why I laugh?—Only she never really did, you see."

"Jean"—Claire's hand crept further along the other's arm and the kind little fingers sought and clasped Jean's own—"if you knew how miserable I am about you! It makes me feel wicked—disgustingly selfish and wicked!—to be so happy myself when you have so much to bear."

There were tears in her voice, and Jean squeezed her hand reassuringly.

"My dear," she said earnestly, "you had your black years if anyone ever had. If a woman ever deserved her happiness at last, you do. . . . I suppose we all get our share of trouble in this world. I must go on thoughtfully. 'I remember the first time I ever met Blaise—that day at Montauk, you know—he said that Destiny, with her mufflers, came to most of us sooner or later and snuffed out our light of happiness. Well'—rather drearily—"I suppose it's my turn now and she's come to me. That's all."

A little wind blew up from the valley, chill and complaining. Autumn had the world at her mercy now, and grey mist was rising from the sodden fields, soaked by the continual rains of the preceding fortnight.

Claire shivered.

"Let's go in," she said. "It's growing too cool to stay out any longer. Blaise, it's depressing. Grey skies, bare branches—Oh! How I detest the autumn!" They turned and retraced their steps to the house, as they entered by way of the front door, they caught a glimpse of the postman making his way briskly down the drive. A solitary letter lay upon the hall table, addressed to Jean in a rather florid copy-clerical style of writing.

"A bill, I suppose!" she commented indifferently.

She picked it up carefully, carrying it unopened to her room. Nor did she open it immediately upon arrival.
